The newspaper of Hoole CE Primary School

IT'S CHRISTMAS

At our Christmas fair was held on Friday the 2nd of December in the school hall. Also it was across some of our school class rooms.

We had many stalls like tombola , Santa's grotto, book shop and the amazing raffle brought to you PTA with kind and helpful assistants. In the raffle there was many wonderful prizes including a day at the spa, the Chester Grosvenor afternoon for two and a gym membership. One of the favourite stalls was pin the baby in the manger. The winner would win a huge basket of chocolates and the winner was Monty.

Our entertainment was provided by the fantastic school choir who sang lovely Christmas carols, led by our amazing conductor and teacher Miss Carter.

Up in the staff room, Santa's grotto was granting young children's Christmas wish. (Santa is going to be working hard this year). The big man's elves worked hard helping parents and children around the school.

There were many food stalls like candy floss, cakes and more. In the kitchen, there where smoky burgers and hot dogs. On the other side of the kitchen, there was hot drinks including sweet tea, scrumptious hot chocolate and mulled wine. Our cakes were homemade and so was our crunchy cookies.

On some tables, teachers were kindly doing glitter tattoos in many different shapes and people. One of the favourite tattoos were icy Elsa and castles. Across from the tattoos, there was a uniform swap held by Mr Underhill. Everyone had a blast.

We raised a grand total of £2760 that our school PTA will put to good use I'm sure. That was our school fair. We hope you can join us next year.

ICE HOCKEY

Did you know that hockey is believed to have come from simple stick and ball games played in the 18th and 19th centuries in the United Kingdom?

The origin of ice hockey was called bandy, a game that started in the Middle Ages. Just as for most of all other sports, the game of bandy took its modern form during the 19th century in England, more exactly in the Fen district on the East coast. From the Fen district the game was spread to London and from London to the Continent during the second half of the 19th century. British soldiers who were in eastern Canada brought the game to the North American continent in the 1850's and '60's. You could find similar games there, played by immigrants (mainly Dutch) and by Indians. That means there were a number of different games played on skates with a stick and ball and with different rules in America before ice hockey was invented.

Grinch's Christmas

Everywhere I look, I just see snow
Snow, snow when will it go?
Winter, winter it's the worst time of year
But why just why does everybody cheer?
What's so special about the frost covered ground?
Why do people love that ringing sound?
Winter, Winter every year
I back away when a hug comes near
I'm all alone there's no joy in me
Why go back when I have no family tree?
But now I know how special this is
The snow covered roof tops and old grandma's kiss
The turkey the stuffing the parsnips too
When I open my presents I now shout woo hoo
From now on happy the Grinch was
When you ask him why he likes Christmas he just says because,
Christmas, Christmas it's the best time of year now I get why everybody cheers

MEET OUR GOVERNORS – MRS ROBERTSON

Mrs Robertson is the Learning Mentor in our school and helps any children who have problems in class or home and has worked in our school for 20 years.

She is a lovely mother of a 36 year old son called Johnathan and a 31 year old daughter called Eleanor.

Her favourite book is the Secret Garden as she read it when she was seven and always felt a connection.

We asked her what her favourite letter was and she answered almost immediately. She said that her favourite letter of the alphabet is E as it is the initial of her name and her dear daughter Ellie. Unfortunately, her children have embarrassed her many, many times but there was one time when the embarrassment went to a whole new level! It was Easter time and her son was 4 and they were walking to a toy shop. At the front of the shop was a big golden egg advertising Easter. Her son wanted THAT exact egg! Her son threw a tantrum and the whole shop started staring. She was really annoyed. She walked away hoping Johnathan would follow. Luckily, he did. He didn't get an Easter egg THAT year!

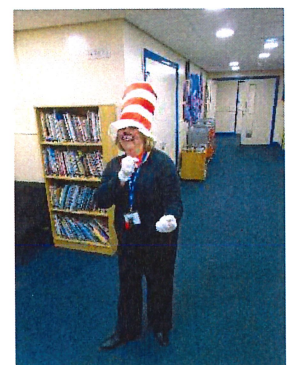

She doesn't just have her hands full with children, she has 2 pets! A dog called Archie and a cat called Toby.

Her favourite football team she supports is Man United.

One of the wackiest things she has ever done was dye her hair red which went a bright purple instead. She still loved it.

Three weird facts that no one knows about until now are, she doesn't like jelly sweets, she smells apples before she buys them and loves the smell of fresh rain.

She found herself the hardest question which was how would you describe yourself in 1 word. She said - Caring.

SANTA

And his interesting story by Sienna

On a cold winter's night, the snow was thick and silence filled the air. It was Christmas. Santa dotted from house to house, delivering presents to sleeping children. Silent as a mouse, he traveled around the world. City to city, country to country and continent to continent. Finally, he headed back to the North Pole.

The next morning, news spread. All of a sudden, Santa's suit was red, not green. The world had turned upside down.

Waking up after a long night, an elf shot in to Santa's room,

"SIR! SIR! Your suit is red!" shouted an elf in a hurry,

"WHAT! Red! My suit is red! Impossible!", screamed Santa in an astonished tone. He marched down stairs with a fuming red face. The young elves turned on the TV in a hurry. Coca Cola had filled every channel with their eye catching adverts. He was furious. The old man raced up stairs, put on his clothes and left to speak to a certain someone (the CEO of Coca Cola).

"UP" shouted Santa, "There is no time to lose". Suddenly, the sleigh was up in the air. They rushed through the cloudy sky in a haste.

Quickly, the reindeer came to a slow perch on the roof of coca cola HQ. He stormed into the front door and a gasp filled the room.

"Santa!"

How to Care for Rabbits in the Winter by Rosie

As the dark winter days draw near once more, as pet owners we should be starting to plan for the health and well-being of the animals that remain outside during the cold and wet conditions.

Our weather can be very cold and it helps to be prepared for any extreme temperatures. Rabbits in particular are at risk of being affected by the cold and ice. In the wild, rabbits live underground which offers them natural protection from the elements.

Weatherproof the rabbit hutch

Looking after rabbits is easier when you have a suitable hutch for them to live in. You will already have bought a good sized hutch that is secure and well ventilated, but if it is time for an upgrade you will find a wide range of high quality hutches.

- Place your hutch away from draughts and damp areas, anywhere that they will be exposed to the cold weather from all sides.
- Raising your rabbit hutch off of the ground will help to keep the cold from entering through the floor and will keep your rabbits clear of puddles that can creep into their living space.
- Look around for gaps in the hutch that the cold and rain can really work through. Repair these with small pieces of wood, or even with sturdy cardboard to keep the cold at bay.
- Check the roof carefully for any damage that may allow leaks into the hutch and repair these straight away. Once water gets inside it will be harder to dry it out.
- If you feel that the hutch is more open than you'd like, put up some beach style wind-breakers around the outside to offer a little extra protection.
- Move the hutch into a garden shed, summer house or garage if you have the space. This will offer lots of protection in the icy weather and give them somewhere to play as well. Just be sure that the areas are well ventilated.

How to keep rabbits warm in the winter

- Provide cosy bedroom areas inside the hutch where your rabbits can snuggle. Cardboard boxes or pet carriers are an excellent solution for this. Otherwise a little hideaway from The Pet Express will work wonders for making your rabbit feel warm and safe.
- Ensure there is lots of soft, warm bedding inside the hutch and refresh it on a regular basis. This will also act as extra insulation from the cold and wind outside.
- If you have only one rabbit, consider getting a companion. This will not only prevent loneliness, but will also provide extra warmth when they snuggle together on cold days.

Food and nutrition

- Encourage your rabbits to forage more inside their hutch. This will keep them occupied during longer spells spent inside and help to keep their body temperature up.
- Your rabbits will need to eat more during the winter months in order to keep up their body weight and therefore keep up their body temperature. Add fresh food daily and top up throughout the day if they are getting through it quickly.
- Wrap water bottles in bubble wrap or an old sock. This will help to keep the frost at bay and prevent the water from icing over when the temperature plummets overnight.

Other things to consider

- Rabbits do not hibernate in the winter, so will still need a good level of exercise to keep their joints mobile and to relieve boredom.
- Ensure that your rabbits have access to their run as much as possible, which you can weatherproof in the same way as the hutch.
- Nothing can beat quality time that they spend with you, so you should ensure that this does not change in the winter. Try to spend more time with them if possible, as they will not be in their runs as often and may feel lonely.
